

U. S. SENDS NAVAL OBSERVERS TO BRITAIN; ENVOY CUDAHY CENSURED AND RECALLED

Three Officers Leave; Purpose of Mission Kept Secret by Navy

Assistant Chief of Operations Heads Assignment; Observers Link Trip to Proposed Sale of Destroyers.

By The United Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. — Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, assistant chief of naval operations, has been sent to London, reportedly on orders by President Roosevelt, to act as a special naval observer, it was revealed tonight. He was accompanied by two aides, Lieutenant Commander B. L. Austin and Lieutenant Donald J. McDonald, who also will act as observers.

The trio will report to Joseph B. Kennedy, United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, and will be attached to the embassy staff. Captain Allen G. Kirk, the present naval attaché in London, will remain there.

The Navy Department would give only meager details regarding the assignment. It refused to say when the three men departed but admitted they had already gone. It also declined to discuss the objective of their mission, which comes amid increasing speculation over what will happen to the British fleet if Germany conquers England.

Follows Donovan Trip.
Only last week Colonel William J. Donovan, World War hero, returned from a special trip to London made at the request of Secretary of the Navy Knox. Donovan and Knox have refused to explain reasons for the trip but Knox said that Donovan did a "swell job."

Donovan will meet President Roosevelt's yacht at Portsmouth, N. H., tomorrow and ride with him as far as Boston on the chief executive's coast defense inspection trip. Knox also will be aboard.

Mr. Roosevelt said Donovan would report to him but that no details will be made public.

Destroyer Link Seen.
The Ghormley assignment aroused speculation whether it may concern possible future sale of 50 over-age United States destroyers to Britain. President Roosevelt has never publicly endorsed the proposal but administrationists have discussed it frequently, coupling it with the warning that surrender of the British fleet would leave the United States vulnerable in the Atlantic.

Observers theorized that in the forthcoming German blitzkrieg against England, Ghormley will keep in close touch with the British naval losses and communicate his information to the President. The latter, it is believed, might use the data thus obtained as the basis of possible future naval aid to Britain.

'Don't Be a Panty Waist,' Girl Tells Draft Foe

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The personal column in the Tribune carried this notice today:
Gladys—Conscription passes—you lose me for a yr., prot. to your senator now, Fred.
Saturday morning's column carries this answer:
Fred—Are you man or mouse? A country worth living in is worth fighting for. Don't be a panty-waist. Gladys.

Divided Senate Begins Debate On Draft Bill

Measure Called 'Tragic Necessity' To Meet Threat of Dictators.

By The United Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The senate opened debate on the peacetime draft bill today with a sharp warning by Senator Morris D. Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, that this drastic step is a "tragic necessity" to meet the threat of dictator nations.

The chairman of the powerful Military Affairs committee, who yesterday jammed through the Senate a bill authorizing mobilization of 360,000 national guardsmen and army reservists for a year's training in modern warfare, said the totalitarian powers do not propose to stop fighting "until all democracies and freedom have been blasted from the earth."

Not Enough Volunteers.
He declared flatly the contention of isolationists that men should not be drafted into the army until it has first been proven conclusively that a sufficient number will not volunteer to man the new $14,000,000,000 total defense program.

"The time element is a tragic necessity and because of it the voluntary system cannot accomplish the emergency work absolutely needed," he said.

In its present form, the bill makes all men between the ages of 21 and 31 subject to compulsory military training. There are about 12,000,000 in this age range, but army experts said that physical disabilities and other considerations would reduce the number to 4,500,000.

21 to 44 Group.

Senator Edward R. Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, co-author of the conscription bill, said he would try to amend it to make all men between the ages of 21 and 44 subject to the draft. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Republican, Massachusetts, served notice that he would seek to limit the number of draftees to 800,000 a year.

These are only two of many proposed revisions which are expected to produce a replica of the historic fight of 21 years ago when a "little band of willful men" blasted Woodrow Wilson's hopes of placing this country in the League of Nations.

One of this little band, Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, California, stepped into the fight today. His hair is whiter, his face has more and deeper lines, but his words have lost none of their sting and the galleries still like him.

"Some of us, in the stress of the moment, have forgotten all the precepts of the Father of Our Country and all they have handed down to us," he said.

Green Opposes Draft.
Pausing momentarily as he read a letter from AFL President William Green, opposing the conscription bill and urging that the American way of voluntary enlistment be tried first, Johnson said:

"The American way! What is that? We have forgotten what the word means. We have gone some other way."

TENNESSEE AIR MYSTERY PRINCIPALS—Here are the principals in the Tennessee "airplane slugging" mystery which took a sensational new turn yesterday when the Nashville Banner said in a news story that Stewardness Rosemary Griffith's version of being slugged and swallowing the key to the plane's luggage compartment while in the air was a "hoax." W. C. Jakeman, a co-pilot (left), visited Miss Griffith in a Nashville hospital yesterday. Miss Griffith, whose condition was said "not serious," is pictured in her hospital bed.

Dr. Robert Ivey Succumbs Here At the Age of 78

He Had Served Georgia Avenue Presbyterian Church 27 Years.

Dr. Robert Ivey, 78, pastor of the Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church for the past 27 years, died last night at a private hospital after an illness of five months. He resided at 641 Grant street, southeast.

A native of Canada, Dr. Ivey came to the United States to study for the ministry, graduating from the Auburn Seminary in New York state. He was the holder of Ph. D. and D. D. degrees.

His first pastorate was in New York state where he served for a number of years before coming to Atlanta to serve with the Georgia Avenue church. At the time of his death, he was the oldest minister in the Atlanta presbytery in point of service.

He is survived by his wife and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Hughes' Famous Plane Leaves for War Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Howard Hughes' famous "flying laboratory" in which he flashed around the world two years ago to set a globe-encircling record, left Los Angeles tonight heading for a war-time mission of courier service between London and Egypt.

It was bought several days ago for an undisclosed sum, sources here said, by the British purchasing commission.

The young, wealthy film producer set his round-the-world mark of 3 days, 19 hours and 17 minutes, in July, 1938, in the big silver monoplane.

Britain Given $400,000 To Replace Lost Planes

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Canadian-born Garfield Weston, member of parliament, gave Minister of Aircraft Production Lord Beaverbrook a check for 100,000 pounds (about $400,000) today to replace 16 British fighter planes lost in yesterday's big air battle over the English channel.

In announcing the gift the minister said the wealthy member of parliament, who was born in Toronto, handed over his check with the remark, "The pilots we cannot replace."

Airline Hostess Denies Hoax; Reiterates Story of Slugging

Nashville Newspaper Charges Falsehood in Reported Attack Aboard Plane; Girl Questioned by Federal Officials.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 9.—(UP)—American Airline Hostess Rosemary Griffith tonight denied a Nashville newspaper story that her version of being slugged on a New York-Dallas sleeper plane Wednesday night was a hoax.

"This is the most ridiculous thing I've ever seen," Miss Griffith told reporters after she had read the story printed in the Nashville Banner.

"The whole basis of the story is false," the stewardess said. "I had no premonition anything was going to happen and told no one that I expected anything to happen to me. It happened just as I said it did."

Miss Griffith then repeated the story she told airline officials yesterday, and to federal officials and newspaper reporters earlier today. This was that a man had demanded the key to the baggage room when the plane was near Nashville and then slugged her. She swallowed the key before losing consciousness.

Variation to Story.

She added one variation to the story in this telling. She said that when the man first said, "Give me the key," she thought he was one of the pilots and started to turn around. She said the man stopped her from turning and said, "Give me the key or I'll slug you."

The pretty hostess' statement released yesterday by airline officials made on mention that she first thought her attacker was one of the pilots.

Miss Griffith also denied in her interview tonight that she was subject to fainting spells, as had been rumored. She said a letter to a friend in Chicago, which had been mentioned in rumors, that "she might look a lot different the next time you see me" referred to her having suffered a broken nose in an automobile accident several weeks ago.

Condition Not Serious.

Physicians at the hospital said Miss Griffith could leave there "in two or three days." Dr. Joe T. Whitfield, who had attended her, did not reply to a question asking if she was able to leave the hospital immediately. Her condition was not serious.

Miss Griffith, in none of today's interviews with reporters and federal officers, supplied any information toward clearing the mystery of how or why she was knocked unconscious on the plane while it sped on its New York-Dallas flight.

The Banner's story said: "The Banner learned today on good authority that the reported attack on Miss Rosemary Griffith is a hoax."

"Miss Griffith had a quarrel with a person described as her

Tobacco Sales Boost Trade in South Georgia

15 to 80 Per Cent Increase Noted; Growers Pleased.

By JACK TURBS.

State News Editor.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—Quickened by the sudden and continuous release of hundreds of thousands of dollars of tobacco money, and spurred by a rising trend in tobacco prices, south Georgia's 15 tobacco "capitals" today reached a prosperous tempo no more than half expected two weeks ago.

Tobacco is right, the prices are right, and business is right, also. That is why business is soaring in south Georgia. Trade is from 15 to 80 per cent better in every town in the tobacco belt. With the outpouring of tobacco dollars, collections are up and increasing.

Furniture, clothing, foodstuffs, heavy household equipment, automobiles, hardware and heavy farm equipment are moving, and most other lines report a marked upturn. Bank deposits are moving upward and investments in postal savings are soaring, officials report. Every town and city in the tobacco sales belt has taken on the appearance of big business.

Hotels are crowded and turning patrons away. Drugstores, restaurants and soft drink counters are feeling the spurt and are fully prepared, as they have been for days, to meet it. Even the leather-lunged and barefoot boy peddlers of "boiled peanuts, two bags for a nickel" are doing a rushing business.

Reports from throughout the Georgia tobacco belt indicated prices today were a shade better than those of yesterday's opening sales, when a first-day average of 18.10 was reached for the state. A stronger demand developed today, and prices went along with it, hopping upward in many markets as much as a cent a pound.

The price range, however, continued to be within the 4 to 28-cent bounds, with more sales within the 18 to 24-cent limits. Whereas the second day of last year's auctions brought grumblings which rose to a united beltwide protest against low prices, not an audible word of dissatisfaction is heard in the warehouses this year. Growers are not merely satisfied. They are pleased, and outspokenly so, with the price situation.

Two weeks ago, growers, who already had been through alternate periods of dry, hot weather and then rainy weather and their worries, were discouraged over the dim prospect for sale of their export grades. Then, miraculously, the government stepped in three days before opening day.

Envoy to Belgium Rebuked for Praise Of German Invaders

Said Nazis 'Behaved Better Than U. S. Soldiers Would Have'; Britain Stirred Over Remarks.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Censured and called home for remarks he made about conditions in German-occupied Belgium, Ambassador John Cudahy was expected by his friends tonight to resign from the diplomatic service.

The State Department, in a public statement, declared the remarks were made in "violation of standing instructions" and disclosed that President Roosevelt had "requested" the diplomat to return for "consultation."

(London dispatches quoted Cudahy as saying he will leave there Saturday and as adding: "I know I am going home to be crucified, but the truth must be told," the United Press said.)

Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium until foreign diplomatic missions were ordered out of there last month by Germany, drew sharp criticism in the British press for an interview in London in which he asserted that Belgium faced near-famine conditions by mid-September unless it received American food supplies.

Hinted for Aid.
This was widely interpreted as a hint that American food should be allowed through the British blockade.

In commenting on the German occupation, he also was quoted as saying he thought German soldiers behave possibly "better than United States soldiers would have done."

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said he was sure "no one will question the sincerity of the ambassador's sympathetic interest in the future well-being of the Belgian people, an interest which is shared by the people of the United States."

But he declared that "certain of the views expressed by the ambassador are not to be construed as representing the views of this government."

(The London Daily Mail quoted Cudahy as saying "I do not retract one word from what I said" in the interview. "I have done my job and I return to the United States with reports of great efforts being made by Great Britain that should inspire my countrymen," Cudahy told the Mail.)

Britain Indignant.
Cudahy's assertion about food conditions in Belgium drew a rejoinder from the British ministry of economic warfare.

"Any coming European shortages or famine," it said in a statement, "will be due to Germany's providing better for the Reich than for the peoples it has conquered."

The presidentially approved censure raised again the question of Cudahy's future.

Before his departure from Belgium, there were reports he might resign to run for governor of Wisconsin.

He is 52, a member of the Cudahy meat packing family, and a resident of Milwaukee.

'Late Air Raid Meal' Served After Britons Leave Cellars

A PORT OF WESTERN ENGLAND, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Despite magnetic mines strewn by low-flying German planes and the harassment of aerial bombardment, Bristol channel, England's great maritime gateway to the west, still is open to ships of the seven seas. The aim of the planes is not always good. One mine fell on land, blowing out the window of a 17th century village church.

Here they count the nights when there are no air raid alarms—and there have been just four since June 24.

Many bombs have dropped in the open country. One farmer threw open his damaged home to sightseers—and charged them a small fee which he gave to the Red Cross.

Some people sleep all night in public shelters. Others wait up until about three or four in the morning and then go to bed reasonably sure of unbroken sleep. Afternoon naps are popular.

Hotels serve a "late air raid breakfast" for nervous guests who have spent the night in the cellars.

Children make a game of the air raids. Many may be seen wearing "tin hats" made of cardboard bearing the words "Junior War hero"—just like daddy wears.

THE LINE MOVES FAST—Down the line with the auctioneer, buyers, warehousemen and checkers walk through rows of baskets filled with the bright leaf that means cash to south Georgia farmers. They never pause, selling a basket every 10 seconds—360 an hour—without rest except for lunch and at the day's end. The photographer's flash bulb so frightened one of the buyers, on the left, that he missed a bid on a fancy basket. He nearly jumped the cameraman, Earl Murry, of Cordele.

Ralls Launches Bid for Farm Commissioner

500 Supporters Attend Meeting; Platform Is Outlined.

By LUKE GREENE.
Replying to attacks of Jim Hicks, one of his opponents, Hamilton Ralls, of Hogansville, opened his campaign for commissioner of agriculture last night with a gathering of approximately 500 of his supporters at a downtown hotel.

Without calling his opponent by name, Ralls referred to a newspaper advertisement of Hicks carried in Atlanta newspapers. "From what I can understand of that advertisement, he wants something," Ralls asserted, "but I am just going to let him holler. From that statement I take it he thinks I am the strongest man in the race."

"Not a Farmer."
Ralls asserted he thought Hicks had insulted the intelligence of the people of Georgia by announcing for commissioner of agriculture, since he was not a practical farmer and therefore was not eligible for the agricultural post.

He has not made a living off a farm," Ralls said in speaking of his opponent. "He has made a living off the farmers of the state."

Taking another shot at Hicks, Ralls declared, "We do not want to reinstate the old J. J. Brown and Fred Bridges gang in the capitol."

The candidate dwelt at length upon his platform, emphasizing the plank which provides for an adequate marketing system for the farmers of Georgia, including the lengthening of the tobacco marketing season. He pointed out this was especially important in view of the fact the nation might lose its export market because of a change in world economics.

He also stressed the plank which provides for legislation to exempt farmers from taxes on gasoline and kerosene used for production purposes on the farm. He described this as his "pet plank."

Ralls added that he stood for efficient and fair administration, legislation to protect the farmers against adulterated or impure seeds and other supplies, friendly co-operation with the College of Agriculture and its extension services, and obtaining "everything free that we can get for the people of Georgia."

The candidate announced he would have no campaign manager, but would have the services of a campaign committee, consisting of a representative from every county in Georgia. This committee, he said, would constitute his "cabinet" if he is elected commissioner of agriculture.

The secretary of this committee, who will be in charge of the Atlanta campaign headquarters, is A. E. Locke, of Thomaston. Tom Herndon, of Carroll county, is assistant secretary.

Hogansville Headquarters.
Ralls said his main headquarters would be maintained at his farm in Hogansville, with Mrs. Ralls in charge.

At the conclusion of the meeting, young Billy Dixon, who will travel throughout the state with Ralls, made a brief speech, in which he declared he was glad "Mr. Ralls is doing no mud-slinging."

C. O. Lamb, superintendent of schools at Hogansville, presided and introduced the candidate. He outlined Ralls' record and declared he was held in high esteem by his neighbors in Hogansville.

Music for the meeting was provided by a string band and a quartet who sang several old-time songs.

Juries Reveal Nazis Control War Patents

Thurman Arnold Says 'Economic 5th Column' Divides Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—An "economic fifth column," Assistant United States Attorney General Thurman Arnold declared today, has placed many businessmen engaged in American vital defense industries "in the impossible position of divided loyalties."

"This is not a malicious fifth column and must not be attributed to espionage," Arnold said, adding that "no moral issues are involved, but merely the enforcement of law."

He explained that evidence of German control of patents important to the war industries of the United States had been uncovered by federal grand juries operating in New York and other key cities, investigating production restriction and price-fixing.

Declining to give specific instances of German patent control, Arnold said that it must be attributed to normal business trends.

The juries, he said, were prepared to return indictments wherever they found production restriction or price-fixing in industries affecting the country's armament program, and to investigate anti-trust law violations occurring in the food, fuel, housing, drug or other vital industries.

IT'S ALL IN THE COOKING — explained Host Bob Stiles as he dabbed the last bit of sauce on his barbecue before serving it to about 200 guests of the Euharlee Farmers' Club, six miles from Cartersville yesterday.

Euharlee Club Gives Barbecue For 200 Guests

Famous Farm Group Near Cartersville Holds Annual Meeting.

(Carolyn McKenzie, The Constitution's girl picture reporter, took her camera to Cartersville yesterday to the 57th annual Euharlee Farmers' Club barbecue. There she found what appeared to her to be an old-fashioned southern gathering lacking only in the presence of slaves to wear red coats and serve mint juleps. In the following article and the accompanying pictures, which she made, Carolyn tells of her visit with the Bartow farmers, their wives, and the invited guests.)

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.
CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 9.—An old southern manor surrounded by foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains was the site today for a gathering of about 200 farmers, their wives and their friends who assembled at the Stiles farm about six miles from here for the 57th annual Euharlee Farmers' Club barbecue.

Under the shade of old oak trees with a typical century-old southern mansion in the background, these persons sat and chatted as they waited for the call of "Come and get it."

Historic Spot.
Had a red-coated butler walked out and served mint juleps to women dressed in hoop skirts instead of those 17 inches from the floor, and to men with large bow ties and coats instead of sport shirts, one might easily have traced back almost a century and seen the old south in all its festivities. For here, on this fertile land which today raises valuable cotton and corn, were once fought battles which made the south a land of emancipated slaves. Back from this setting, one might walk over the grounds where events similar to those portrayed in "Gone With the Wind" actually occurred.

But these farmers were not gathered together to expand their imaginations and try to picture themselves in the light of their great, great grandfathers. They were here to eat barbecue, Brunswick stew, and all the trimmings—and they fulfilled their purpose.

The Euharlee club holds the distinction of being the oldest in the United States by virtue of its continuous operation. Its membership consists of 12 regular members and three honorary members. Persons are elected only at the death of older members.

Fifteen Members.
And so the group of 15 men work together "for the mutual improvement of their members in matters pertaining to agriculture." Sufficient proof of their success was revealed earlier this week when the University System of Georgia for its outstanding work in advancing agriculture in the state.

Barbecued lamb, pork, and beef, together with wash tubs full of lemonade and Brunswick stew, surrounded the atmosphere of the old Stiles home which has been in the possession of some members of that family since the original land grant from Governor Lumpkin when the Cherokee Indians left that territory around 1828.

Talk of War and Stuff.
Dressed in their coolest and prettiest summer frocks, women and girls from Cartersville and Bartow county came to this barbecue with their husbands, friends, and sweethearts. Before the actual eating began, the men gathered on one side of the spacious lawn, possibly to talk of crops, politics, or the war; while their womenfolk sat in chairs under the trees and laughingly remarked

Jury Exonerates Judge Humphries

The Fulton county grand jury yesterday afternoon returned special presentments completely exonerating Judge John D. Humphries, senior judge of Fulton superior court, of rumored charges of misconduct.

The jury's presentments were ordered filed and spread on the minutes of the superior court by Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr. The grand jury, of which George S. Foster is foreman, said the rumors had become so prevalent it felt its duty was to investigate, but that it found the rumors were completely unfounded.

Among the true bills returned yesterday was one naming Eugene O'Neill (not the playwright) for assault with intent to murder Ed Dunn, and another charging Joe Regular with the same offense against Henry Thomas.

Hubert Wells, white, was indicted for falsely impersonating James T. Wells at the city police station earlier this week. Attaches of the solicitor general's office said Hubert Wells answered to the name of James T. Wells and was released after getting James T. Wells' $7, watch, pen and glasses.

MUSGROVE OPENS QUARTERS

Downing Musgrove, candidate for comptroller general, will open headquarters today in Room 318 of the Winecoff hotel. Musgrove was confined to his room yesterday with an attack of laryngitis.

about their cleaning house for relatives, or their canning, or styles, or how much they enjoy these annual feasts.

The preliminaries ended with the anxiously-awaited call of "Come and get it." Then they lined up, cafeteria style, set out through the string of tables to fill their plates with the choice southern plates.

After dinner they wanted to relax, and so they talked, waited for their large meal to settle, and then slowly filed away, each one with thoughts of next year and hopes of returning to this, one of Bartow county's most enjoyable summer outings.

Speed Defense, U. S. Is Urged By Summerall

Less Time To Get Ready 'Than You Think,' Former Army Chief Says.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—A warning that "There's less time than you think" for the United States to prepare her defenses comes from General Charles P. Summerall, former chief of staff of the United States army.

A leader in battles in the Philippines, the Boxer rebellion and the World War, the white-haired ex-warrior believes his country should stand prepared for the worst.

"Any man not conscious of the dangers which threaten our country today is not thinking and is not perceiving," the 73-year-old general said.

"There's less time than you think." The day after that assertion, Summerall was "drafted" to serve on a new state committee to streamline this state for a part in the gigantic national defense program.

His new duties are far different from the ones which carried him over the globe during 39 years in the army. He tackles them, however, with no less ardor.

Trade Booms As Leaf Prices Move Upward

and the Commodity Credit Corporation, through Imperial (British export) Tobacco Company buyers, is buying up the export tobacco. It will be held for later export purchases by foreign companies, which have been forced out of the market by war conditions.

Aside from this last-hour solution of the export situation, Georgia growers have one other reason to be thankful for fair and equitable prices this year. They learned a lesson, and now are reaping the dividends. They learned about orderly marketing.

Picture Changed.
Ever since tobacco first was sold in Georgia about 23 years ago, growers have jammed the markets with the opening day, clamoring for first-day sales. They needed the cash, and needed it quickly.

Consequently, in the past, every one of south Georgia's 60-odd warehouses has been flooded with bright leaf before auctioning began. Outside the doors, trucks would be lined along the streets, waiting for space to unload. The result has been blocked sales and general confusion, with lower prices resulting.

This year the picture has entirely changed, except in the smaller marketing centers. In the larger ones, some warehouses even now have space to spare, and few trucks or wagons have to wait. The result has been more orderly marketing and better prices.

Reward Is Reaped.
A part of this change is due to the fact farmers have adopted other sources of revenue, including livestock. With federal co-operation, they are learning diversification. Consequently the opening of the tobacco season does not leave them in such pressing need of cash. They can afford to market more slowly, and reap the reward.

Cotton and livestock and plants and truck crops come and go, but nothing pours soft money into the trade channels quite so quickly or effectively as tobacco. Tobacco is whooping it up, and will keep it up for at least a month, until even very leaf of this year's crop—finest in south Georgia's history—is sold. At Hazlehurst, Warehouseman S. A. McCoskey reported total second day sales amounted to 246,472 pounds at an average of 19 cents. Top price was 30 cents and low 4 cents.

Warehouseman L. C. Pruitt, at Waycross, announced a similar range, with the average nearer 20 cents, but more poorer grades in evidence.

R. E. Sheppard, warehouseman at Statesboro, announced a range of 5 to 30 cents, with the bulk of his sales going around 18.50 cents.

Robert Herring said the range at Tilton was between 5 and 30 cents, while heaviest volume was at 20 cents.

J. D. Rogers, Pelham warehouseman, saw the first row today go at 19.10 cents, with an average of 19 cents in sight for the day on a range between 10 and 28 cents.

Grade Mostly Poor.
Sales Manager W. R. Salter, at Hahira, listed range of 5 to 26 cents with the grade mostly poor and the average price 17.1-2 cents.

Warehouseman W. D. Odum said the second day's sales at Metter ranged in price from a low of 8 cents to a high of 30 cents with an average of 18.50.

At Vidalia, Warehouseman Vann said sales showed a low of 8 cents and a high of 28 cents, with the majority of leaf going at around 18.50.

Supervisor Stultie at Blackshear reported total sales today at $500,000 pounds at an average of between 18 and 20 cents, the high being 28 cents and the low 6 cents. The grade was mostly fair.

Warehouseman Warren reported at Baxley sales totaled 243,186 pounds for an average of 19 cents. The grades were mostly good. Prices ranged from 5 to 29 cents.

Insurance Data Distributed Here

Copies of a bulletin just released by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States entitled "Should You Change Your Old Life Insurance For New?" has been received in Atlanta and may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce or from any member of the Atlanta Association of Life Underwriters.

S. Russell Bridges Jr., president of the association, announced yesterday. The bulletin, Bridges said, is for the information of the 64,000,000 owners of life insurance policies in the nation, and is being given wide distribution by the National Association of Life Underwriters. It explains, he said, how policy holders can avoid the pitfalls of term insurance through understanding its uses.

Bandit Suspects Murder Their Girl Associate

Fleeing Officers, They Shoot Her, Toss Body Out of Auto.

CLINTON, Okla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Three trigger-quick bandit suspects tossed the body of an attractive red-haired woman companion from their automobile today as they sped through town, fleeing a gun fight in which Police Chief Ben D. Clark was wounded critically.

The body of the young woman was found half hour after Clark was felled by buckshot blasts into the face and chest. He and Constable C. L. Irwin had sought to arrest the men as suspects in a restaurant robbery committed earlier in the day.

The officers answered the bandits' shotgun fire with pistol bullets. But as Clark fell, the gunmen sped away. Two suspects were wounded, Irwin said.

Police Chief Jack Ary, of Drumright, who joined other northeast Oklahoma officers in a search for the three men, said it was evident the woman was slain by her companions, armed with shotguns.

She was not immediately identified. Ary said she was about 25, hatless and wearing short hose.

J. D. Hurley, Oilton undertaker, reported she was shot twice at close range with a shotgun, one charge entering her left thigh and the other her left breast.

"It looked like somebody put a shotgun against her body and pulled the trigger. Even some of the wadding was driven into the wounds."

Clark stepped to the running board of the stopped car and was knocked over by a quick shotgun charge. The sedan sped away as Irwin emptied his pistol at it.

Dr. Collins Heads State Defense Unit

Governor Rivers yesterday appointed Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, as chairman of a Georgia Committee on Education and the Defense of American Democracy. The work of the committee will be to advance the cause of education as a safeguard for democracy.

Other members of the committee are M. E. Thompson, assistant state school superintendent; Judge A. H. Freeman, chairman of the State Board of Education; John L. Allman, president of the Georgia Education Association; Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the Education Association; M. D. Mobley, vocational training director for state schools; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, and Jere Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools.

Nazis Forbid Belgians To Tune in on Britain
BERLIN, Aug. 9.—(AP)—General Baron Alexander von Falkenhayn, German military commander for Belgium and northern France, today forbade the population to listen to English radio broadcasts.

Another decree prohibited the unauthorized wearing or possession of uniforms and insignia of the German army, the Nazi party or its various formations.

Regents' Board Asks Bids on Equipment

The State Board of Regents yesterday called for bids on $60,000 worth of equipment for a dormitory building at the University of Georgia. The building formerly was designed for a Sigma Nu fraternity house, but was later changed to a dormitory when complications arose between the regents and the Public Works Administration in Washington.

New Offerings Will Entertain Movie Patrons

Atlanta Theaters Bill Good, Solid Fare for This Week.

By LEE FUHRMAN, Acting Motion Picture Editor. Good, solid entertainment fare is the order in Atlanta theaters this week.

The offerings downtown lead off with Bill Powell and Myrna Loy at Loew's in "I Love You Again," as funny a show as ever came out of Hollywood; "The Lady in Question," with Brian Aherne and Rita Hayworth, at the Rialto; another good comedy, "Cross-Country Romance," at the Paramount, which is of the "It Happened One Night" type, and the Capitol's "You're Not So Tough," with the Little Tough Guys and the Dead End Kids.

The Fox has a show to be recommended in "Maryland," a beautifully photographed tale of horses and horse-lovers, and containing some of the best Negro scenes ever caught on a motion picture film. "Pride and Prejudice," that charming tale of old England, is at the Rhodes.

"I LOVE YOU AGAIN" SWELL COMEDY

Far and away the best comedy in town is "I Love You Again," opening yesterday at Loew's, which brings together again in madcap-married roles the suave William Powell and the attractive Myrna Loy.

If the reaction of the opening day audience is any gauge, this show is due to make the welkin and the boxoffice register ring with enough energy to rival the Niagara Falls hydroelectric power station.

Briefly, the plot deals with the complications in the life of Powell, a former smooth swindler, when a conk on the head with an oar, suffered when he rescues the drunken Frank McHugh, pulls him out of a near-year-old mental fog.

The film is replete with clever lines, put over with plenty of punch by Powell and McHugh. Miss Loy plays her role in characteristic style—charming, winning and delightful as usual. It's a swell comedy, packed with laughs from start to finish. If you don't enjoy it, something's wrong with your funny bone.

Also on the bill are a "Crimes Do Not Pay" short and newsreel.—L. F.

"MARYLAND" FEATURES FINE PHOTOGRAPHY

Three things stand out in the memory after viewing "Maryland," which opened Thursday at the Fox theater.

They are the excellent color photography—which presents some genuinely beautiful scenes; the work of Ben Carter, as the shiftless Negro, "Shadrac," and the scenes in the little Negro church, where the backsliding "Shadrac" gets religion.

These are the principal things which make the film one to be recommended, yet the impression as a whole leaves an impression of genuine excellence. The story deals with horses and horse lovers, climaxed by a running of the famous Maryland Hunt Club steeplechase race.

HANDSOME HERO—Randolph Scott is but one of the many capable players in the thrilling western film, "When the Daltons Rode," presented in a mid-night show at the Fox theater tonight.

Turning in fine performances are Fay Bainter, as the bitter chateleine of a Maryland estate; Walter Brennan, as the horse owner; Hattie McDaniel, as "Shadrac's" long-suffering spouse; Brenda Joyce and John Payne, as the young sweethearts.

But Ben Carter deserves praise in a paragraph all to himself. He is immense in all sequences. And the Negro scenes, all of them, merit praise.

Also on the bill are a newsreel, Homer Knowles at the organ, and "Young America Flies," an authentic dramatization of the training of American youth in aviation. A good, all-round bill.—L. F.

CROSS-COUNTRY ROMANCE SHOWS AT PARAMOUNT

When a society girl walks out on her wedding and stows away in the trailer of a handsome young doctor the results of the escapade become pretty obvious and the obvious happens in "Cross-Country Romance," which opened yesterday at the Paramount theater.

Gene Raymond is the young doctor, bent on burying himself in a research laboratory in China, and who puts up a good fight to keep romance from interfering with his plans. Wendy Barrie, a nit-wit with too much money, has a different idea about it and almost changes his plans.

The movie, on the whole, is fair entertainment, not without laughs and with a pleasing minimum of over-romantic scenes.

The Paramount's bill also carries a "March of Time" with im-

Egypt Speeds Plan To Join Britain in War

'The Desert Is a Terrible Enemy,' Mussolini's Armies Warned.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Egypt prepared tonight to join forces with the outnumbered British in the moment Italy's African armies make their expected attack upon this ancient desert land.

The nation's press chorused this warning to Premier Mussolini's armies.

"The desert is a terrible enemy! It is the tomb of those who traverse it!" An Italian invasion, the newspapers added, would end as did the first Napoleon's costly retreat on the plains of Russia.

Abdel Rahman Azzam Bey, commander of Egypt's territorial army, declared that "any aggressive action against Egypt will cost the invader very dear," and disclosed that 200,000 men were being hurriedly trained.

Egypt is tied to Britain by a purely defensive alliance.

The newspaper Balagh remarked that while the Italian forces were estimated to be 10 times superior to the British in numbers, their fighting ability was not impressive.

"LADY IN QUESTION" IS RIALTO OFFERING

An old idea—boy meets girl—with a few new twists, namely this time boy doesn't get girl, his son beats his time and does instead, provides what plot there is to "The Lady in Question," Rialto opus this week.

During all the reels there are numerous patriotic references to the republic of France, which, since the cinema was filmed, has suffered a case of rigor mortis. Such references could have been better appreciated three months ago before A. D. (Adolf's Destruction).

The stand-out of the whole film is a court scene which is supposed to have taken place in Paris, locale of the show. In the scene Rita Hayworth is acquitted of murder by the leading male of the cast, Brian Aherne. Aherne isn't a lawyer, but a doting old bicycle peddler, very happy now that he is at long last serving as a juror.

Miss Maymott, after her trial, worms into the combination Aherne home and bicycle shop where, in addition to a grown son, there is a wife and a daughter. Trouble comes when she gets there. It all turns out well, and the final scene finds all members of the rejuvenated Aherne family riding down a Paris boulevard on tandems.—S. S.

Windsors Plan New York Trip In Near Future

Duke Recalls Woolworth Building Was Highest on Last U. S. Visit.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor, recalling that the Woolworth building was the tallest building in New York on his last visit, said today he would go back soon with his American-born Duchess to see the sights.

Both the Duke and Duchess talked enthusiastically of their prospective visit to the United States, but they did not set the date.

"The Duchess hasn't been to the United States for eight years and I haven't been for 16 years, so it's certainly time we went," the Duke observed. "The last time I was there the Woolworth building was the highest in New York—that rather dates me."

The Duchess said she was anxious to go back to see the homefolks and that she was "excited" at being so close to home as Bermuda, adding:

"You can imagine how thrilling it is."

Cotton Loan Rate Schedule Fixed by U.S.

Non-mandatory Program for Crop Approved by Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Commodity Credit Corporation announced today a loan rate schedule ranging from 9.16 to 9.9 cents a pound on this year's estimated 11,429,000-bale cotton crop.

The corporation's announcement followed a statement by President Roosevelt at Hyde Park that he had approved Secretary Wallace's recommendation of a $150,000,000 non-mandatory loan program for the 1940 crop.

The President also signed a bill increasing the corporation's resources from $900,000,000 to $1,400,000,000 to carry out mandatory corn, cotton and wheat loan provisions of the agricultural adjustment act.

The 1940 cotton loan program will be a continuation of the policy in effect for six years under which the Commodity Credit Corporation holds title to 6,640,000 bales of 1934 and 1937 cotton. In addition, 2,120,000 bales are held subject to redemption by repayment of notes under programs for 1938 and 1939.

Based on the 1940 loan rate will be 15-16 inch middling cotton, net weight. Last year's basis was 7-8 inch middling.

Figured on a 7-8 inch basis, the corporation said, the minimum rate this year will be 8.51 cents as against 8.3 cents last year. On this basis, the corporation estimated the average loan would be 8.9 cents, or 56 per cent of the June 15 parity price, compared with 8.7 cents last year.

Loans will be made only on negotiable receipts for cotton stored in government-approved warehouses. The maximum monthly rate to be allowed warehouses for storage and fire insurance is unchanged at 15 cents a bale.

Red Cross Shows Raise $8,398.56

The American Red Cross war relief fund received $8,398.56 from special midnight shows sponsored by the Variety Club of Atlanta last month.

Receipts in the Wilby circuit were $3,751.16, in the Lam circuit they were $114, in the Fox theater of Atlanta receipts totaled $2,675 and in other Lucas & Jenkins' houses the funds were $1,858.

In each instance the total receipts were turned over to the local branch of the Red Cross.

1,000 British Ships Carry War Goods

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—England still has plenty of shipping to transport war purchases from the United States despite intensified German air and sea attacks on her supply lines, a spokesman for the British purchasing commission said today.

More than 1,000 vessels, he said, are carrying supplies from North America to the British Isles.

The spokesman estimated British war orders now totaled between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000, with airship purchases accounting for half the total.

Out of some 11,000 airplanes ordered here, he revealed, approximately 2,900 have been delivered for shipment to England.

Whistle Note Too High for Basso Puppies

I am wondering which official of the Southern railway to interview about a personal problem. Its tracks between Atlanta and Washington are about half-a-mile from our house and ordinarily we do not hear the trains. In the still watches of a summer night, when our windows are open, we can hear the rumble and the long-sustained whistle. Up to now they haven't disturbed us. Indeed, the sound is rather soothing—except we have wondered why it was necessary for the engineer to play a symphony on a whistle except when approaching a grade crossing or to scare cows off the track. I know of no grade crossings near us and I'm sure there are no cows.

But what I desire to ask is that the pitch of the whistles be changed. I'd like them dropped about an octave. Or even from soprano to bass.

Because our two infernal pups, Ding and Dope, who inhabit their own yard in the rear except when they prefer to climb the fence, are peculiarly affected by that whistle. They have a feeling for harmony and as long as the whistle blows they howl. Being dachshunds they are natural basso vocalists. They attempt vainly to hit the key set by the whistle and I'm afraid they're going to bust something.

Dr. Cook Yarns

Death of Dr. Frederick Cook, who claimed years ago to have discovered the north pole, brings up two local stories.

One is about Dinkie Dallis, advertising man, who was promoting a cooking essential known as snowdrift. He conceived an idea. He employed Lewis Gregg, then a Constitution artist, to draw him a poster showing Dr. Cook waist deep in a snowdrift surmounted by the pole—of the press service sign type. With the name of the product plainly visible to the naked eye.

Dinkie had ten thousand posters printed—in colors. Just as the printers delivered them the Dr. Cook myth was exploded. The doc hadn't got near the pole. Dinkie says the posters, yellowed by age, are still stored in a warehouse somewhere. Such is the fate of good ideas.

The other story is about Charley Harp, a newspaperman of that period, telegraph editor on the Georgian in the old days.

One afternoon the opposition paper hit the street with a huge headline on Dr. Cook's discovery. As Charley's boss I desired urgently to know if our press service had sent the story and if so why hadn't we printed it.

Mr. Harp showed me a two-inch item buried beneath the local produce market on Page 14. "That's all I thought it was worth," he explained. And yet he was considered a good newspaperman. Temporary editor.

Couple of years afterward—Mr. Harp had severed his connection with the paper or vice versa—Charley called upon me. He exhibited a newspaper which displayed a story showing up Dr. Cook as a fake.

"See there," he said. "Maybe I had more sense than all the rest of you fellows."

Maybe he did.

Should Know Better

Names baffle me. I never can think of them when I need them. Short time ago I typed a story about continuity and used several instances of authors who had achieved popularity by creating a character and building him up. I mentioned the famous Mr. Glencannon, one of my favorite people, and credited his creation to Paul Gallico.

Come a postcard from Homer George, who says he has been under the impression that one Guy Gilpatrick created Mr. Glencannon. Of course! I knew that as well as Homer did. Just one of those fool things.

But I feel humiliated. Not at making a fool error but because nobody else seems to notice it. Maybe nobody—horrible thought—pays any attention to my stuff. Several years ago I reported that up at Spring Place in north Georgia is an old house where John Howard Payne was said to have written "The Star-Spangled Banner." I meant, of course, "Home, Sweet Home."

It went past the linotype operator, the proofreader and the chap supposed to check my copy. A few days afterward I discovered, to my shame, what a mistake I had made. But no 'phones rang, no letters arrived. If any reader caught the blunder he kept it to himself. For which I shall be forever grateful.

ROOSEVELT COTTON—This 456-pound bale of cotton, donated to President Roosevelt's campaign by J. L. Pilcher, of Thomas county, brought $1 per pound yesterday on the auctioneer's block in the state capital. Fred Scott, of Thomasville, right, purchased the bale and immediately redonated it to the campaign. Marvin Griffin, left, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, auctioned off the bale in the absence of Governor Rivers.

Georgia tobacco markets opened Thursday and I'm glad I'm not assigned to make another tour of them. The inside of a metal-roofed tobacco warehouse is hot enough to make an atheist believe in hell.

Although I visited 14 or more auctions a few summers ago I never learned to understand the auctioneer's jargon. But the buyers did, shuffling along sideways between the rows of tobacco and making silent signals to indicate their bids. That chap who does the imitation on the radio is as clear as crystal compared to some of the auctioneers I heard.

In the good old days, says a historical item, herds of buffalo on the plains would hold up trains for three hours at a time. The trains are getting even now. On grade crossings where a freight backs up and goes forward and backs up again and holds up a line of cars.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Sunday's lesson, Psalm 19, is a surpassing message on the works and word of God, closing with a prayer which embodies every soul who reads it. "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer."

In poetry of unexcelled beauty the sweet singer of Israel sketches sublimely for us the works and word of God. We are brought anew to see Him as Creator and Preserver of the universe, and as Revealer and Redeemer from sin.

The glory of God in nature is here most vividly portrayed by reference to the stars, the sky, and the sun. The starry sky above me, and the moral law within me, are things which fill the soul with ever new and increasing admiration and reverence," said Kant. Even Napoleon was impressed by the message of the stars. It is recalled how Napoleon, on a journey with his soldiers across the Mediterranean, heard them declaring their belief in God. He said to them, as he paced the deck, "Look up there above your heads and tell me, who made that?"

"Dull ears do not hear the voices of the skies, but whether they are stopped with the clay of earthly tastes and occupations, or stifled with scientific wadding of the most modern kind, the ears that do not hear God's name sounded from the abysses above, have failed to hear the only word which can make man feel at home in nature," said Alexander MacLaren.

The goodness of God in revelation is also clearly set forth in Psalm 19. David presents the truth of the goodness of God in law, testimony, statutes, commandments and judgments. He declares that the Bible is perfect, dependable, incorruptible, trustworthy and righteous. He goes further to declare that the Bible will restore unto us the joy of our salvation.

If we are to experience this sense of the goodness of God as revealed in nature and through His holy Book, we must desire such knowledge, we must be willing to have the Holy Spirit enlighten our souls, and we must depend upon God's guidance in service.

It follows, therefore, that any soul, every soul, may come to know God through His open book of nature and His eternal word. The shepherd on the lonely hill, the sailor on the boisterous sea, the farmer in the furrow, the mechanic beside the whirling wheel, the banker at his desk, the teacher before her class—all may come to know Him if only we will open our eyes to see and our ears to hear. He is available to any and every heart that will trust in Him. Man is competent to deal directly with God, without dependence upon any mediary, save the always present Spirit that quickeneth unto life everlasting.

Stirling Urges U. S. Destroyer Sale to Britain

Admiral Sees No Difference in Warship or Airplane Contracts.

By REAR ADMIRAL YATES

STIRLING JR.

(Copyright, 1940, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(UP)—

The proposal to sell to Britain 50 or more over-age World War destroyers of the United States navy has aroused hot controversy.

In the opinion of the writer, those destroyers should be furnished to Britain. The British navy is all that stands between Hitler and his ultimate goal—the resources of the Americas and the enslavement of their peoples.

The destroyers in question are of little use to us as long as the British navy remains undefeated. They will be fighting for America most effectively by being added to the British navy.

Could Surpass America. If Hitler can seize the British Isles and destroy the bases of the Royal navy, even though he might not destroy or capture its ships, he will be in a dominant position.

With the shipyards of Holland, Norway, Denmark and France added to those of Germany, Hitler could, within the next six years or so, with the resources of the war at his disposal, build warships and airplanes that would far eclipse anything that America could achieve in that direction.

The United States has more than 150 destroyers, built during and after the World War and now over-age, which could soon be made available for service. If the United States can permit airplanes to go practically direct from the United States to England, to be used in fighting Germany's air forces, there seems no logical reason why destroyers also cannot be sent in a similar manner, with British or Canadian crews.

Can't See Difference. Both airplanes and destroyers are warships. If we are willing to evade the rule of international law in one case, why not in another?

There are arguments to the contrary, of course. Some members of congress contend that furnishing the destroyers would mean active United States participation in the war. I still do not see the difference between selling airplanes to the British, and selling them destroyers.

Legal arguments also have been advanced. The New York Journal says that under technical law, no ban has been put on the sale of airplanes and munitions, but that the sale of destroyers is forbidden. It seems entirely technical, and a matter which congress should decide.

There is the matter of public opinion. To examine both sides of the question, the New York Times reported that General John J. Pershing's proposal for the sale of 50 over-age destroyers to Britain. The Times suggested that, if congress fears the effect on the electorate in a critical presidential year, the public should be polled. The Times further pointed out that a recent Gallup poll showed a strong sentiment in favor of more direct aid to Britain.

On the other hand, the New York Daily News opposed the sale. The News said that since we have decided we need double the strength of our present navy, how can we spare 50 destroyers now, and perhaps 50 later when those have been blown up? Why, asked the News, send our destroyers over with a bombing range of Hitler to be wiped out, when they can be kept here to defend our shores against attacks which must be made at a great disadvantage across thousands of miles of ocean?

It is a question for the American people and congress to decide. The writer is expressing his opinion. Let others do the same.

Techwood Homes Celebration Set

A little Mardi Gras with street dancing is being planned for August 31 on the fourth anniversary of the opening of Techwood Homes.

L. C. Kent is chairman of the committee of the Techwood Tenants' Association working out details of the carnival. The celebration will begin at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and will take place in Techwood drive between Pine street and Merriitts avenue. Street dancing will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until midnight.

Proceeds from the carnival will be used to pay for the Boy Scout troop, the newly organized Girl Scouts, equipment for the junior recreation room and other activities sponsored by the community.

Committee chairman for the festival, as announced by Kent, include Robert L. Roper and Joe Robinson, co-chairmen, construction; H. D. Chance, bingo; Techwood Woman's Club, ice cream and candy apples; Marion Myles, D. W. Faggett, L. V. Cohen, Woody Thomas and Joe Robinson, games of chance; Mrs. Ben Moss, fish pond; Grady McKenzie, drinks; Mrs. T. D. Sewell, dance, and Mrs. William M. Nash, winners.

Paroles Granted 3 More Convicts

Three more Fulton convicts have been paroled by the State Prison and Parole Commission, the Fulton superior court was notified yesterday.

They were Oscar Redding, who was sentenced to two to three years in December, 1938; J. C. Whitten, convicted of simple larceny and sentenced to 12 months, and Leonard Baker, convicted on nine counts of forgery and given 36 months. Parole papers were delivered to Deputy Clerk C. E. Hartsfield yesterday.

THE EMBLEM OF FREEDOM

Editor, Constitution: When we of the south want to start something that we believe is for the good of the country we run to The Constitution.

I have no interest in either button or pin factories, but a very practical and sentimental interest in this United States.

Being a strong believer in psychology, the thought occurred to me that if every man, woman and child wears a flag, not of necessity a pennant, but visible, it would do much to keep our splendid freedom in mind. There is by the way a lapel pin for men, a narrow strip of red, white and blue, and this carries the thought of the stars and stripes quite vividly. MRS. A. D. GRANT, Atlanta.

COMMENTS DEPT. OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Editor, Constitution: Careful study of the statement on administrative costs of the State Department of Public Welfare recently distributed by Mr. Braswell Deen, the director, shows the excellent work the state department is doing, while at the same time administrative costs are kept to a minimum.

The Department of Public Welfare of the state of Georgia has done a capable job in administering a huge assistance program with a minimum of overhead costs.

A good job in the welfare field demands qualified personnel in order to do an efficient and economical piece of work. Workers may be hired cheaply, but in the long run they will actually cost more because of the poor quality of service they perform. Administrative costs can be held so low that it is done at the expense of the needy, for whom the work is set up.

The State Department of Public Welfare and the people of the state of Georgia should know the quality of work being done under severe limitations. It behoves all of us to work for the advancement of that department and its service to the people of this state.

RAILROAD TAXES IN FULTON COUNTY

Editor, Constitution: In an advertisement by the railroads in Georgia just released for publication in your paper, a statement is made of the total taxes assessed against the railroads in this state for the year 1939. While these figures are of state-wide interest, it has occurred to me that probably you would like to know just how much of these taxes were assessed against the railroads in Fulton county. I beg to advise that they were as follows:

State	$ 38,391.38
County-wide taxes	118,174.17
County-wide school taxes	17,652.97
Municipal taxes:
Atlanta	$88,837.66
College Pk.	693.27
East Point	2,130.10
Fairburn	1,158.47
Hapeville	501.57
Palmetto	584.68
Union City	824.79
Total	$268,940.06

ISOLATIONISTS ARE BLIND

Editor, Constitution: I appreciate your editorial "And All's Well," published August 5. The implications of the moving tribute to England must help to defeat the isolationist sentiment now menacing us—Isolationist leaders who seem blind to our dependence as a nation upon English victory now.

KATE F. EDWARDS, Atlanta.

And Air Force

Thousands Reported To Have Enlisted Under New Regulations.

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Several Americans were unofficially reported today to have joined the Canadian Air Force here and in England as pilots, observers, air gunners, mechanics and instructors.

The national defense department said it could not provide any figures because until recently every man enlisting in Canadian forces had to say he was a British subject and had to take the oath of allegiance. Since this stipulation was dropped there was a spurt in enlistments for the air force.

It was reported unofficially that 100 Americans were in the first division of ground troops to go overseas, and the air force is far more popular with the Americans than the army.

With the same proportion throughout the Canadian active service force, however, there would be around 1,000 Americans in the army alone.

Red Cross Unit Speeds Production of Supplies

The American Red Cross, according to Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter, is making every effort to facilitate the production of hospital supplies, preparatory for increased demands.

Production work has been speeded here with the opening of the North Side unit of surgical dressings in the Inman family home at 850 West Peachtree street with Mrs. Floyd W. McRae as chairman and Mrs. John L. Appleby, vice chairman. The first surgical dressings unit opened at

The Army IN GEORGIA

Two hundred and forty-three of the 6,797 soldiers recruited last month in the Fourth Corps Area were signed up by the Atlanta recruiting station, corps area officers reported yesterday.

Southern cities, in addition to Atlanta, which enlisted 200 or more men were Charlotte, 248; Jackson, Miss., 246; New Orleans, 245; Monroe, La., 210; Knoxville, 287; Memphis, 258, and Montgomery, 204.

Fort Moultrie, at Charleston, S. C., with a total of 219, enlisted more troops than any other post in the area. Fort McPherson signed up 75.

Of the approximately 7,000 who applied for admission into the army, less than 300 were rejected for physical and other disabilities.

After acceptance by the army, 74 men changed their minds and declined to be sworn in, while 177 dropped completely out of sight after successfully completing all preliminaries.

Three Georgians have accepted appointments as second lieutenants in the air corps reserve. Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday. They are Ben Skrine, of Hawkinsville; Joseph Ora Garrett, of Canton, and William Porter Martin, of Chickamauga.

54 OFFICERS, 1,004 MEN AT FORT MCPHERSON

Fort McPherson's strength yesterday was tabulated at 54 officers and 1,004 men by Major Joseph Harper, adjutant of the post.

Divisions stationed there at present include the 62d Signal Battalion with nine officers and 381 men; a band unit with a warrant officer and 22 men; Company F of the 22d Infantry with three officers and 212 men; prison detachment with 32 men; a quartermaster's corps with eight officers and 133 men; 12 officers in the headquarters detachment, and a medical department with 15 officers and 75 men.

Second Lieutenant Morris E. Branigan, one of the first reserve officers called up for extended duty, has been transferred from Fort McPherson to Fort Benning. He will begin a 12 weeks "refresher course" on August 12 at the infantry school. Assigned to Company F of the 22d Infantry, Lieutenant Branigan began service July 26.

ARMORED MACHINES VISIT GRIFFIN TODAY

Two cars from the Second Armored Division at Fort Benning, now doing publicity work for the recruiting service, will be on exhibition today at Griffin.

Mounting machine guns and hauling French 75s behind them, the armored machines are reminiscent of German units whose effectiveness was demonstrated in France and Belgium.

Monday the cars will be on exhibition at Austell, Villa Rica and Carrollton, Tuesday at Marietta and Cartersville, Wednesday at Fairburn and Newnan, Thursday at Porterdale and Covington, and Friday at Decatur and Lawrenceville.

Yesterday, one of the cars was stationed at East Point and another at College Park.

Another detachment from the same division is expected to arrive in Dawson Wednesday to spend three days in that territory.

First Lieutenant William Rex Hutchinson, Dental Corps Reserve, Atlanta, has been assigned to a year's active duty at Langley Field, Va., Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday.

NAVY RECRUITING QUOTA FOR GEORGIA ANNOUNCED. Navy Department has notified officers of the Georgia recruiting district that a quota of 213 men has been assigned the state for August. Of the number, 40 have been assigned the Atlanta recruiting sub-station, 320 New Postoffice building. Successful applicants will be transferred to the Naval Training Station at Norfolk for a three months' course before seeing active service.

OFFICER PERSONNEL CHANGES ANNOUNCED. FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 9.—Recent changes affecting officer personnel at Fort Benning included: First Lieutenant James E. Norvell, Field Artillery, arrived for duty with the Second Armored Division. First Lieutenant Albert P. Mossman, 26th Armored Regiment, departed for Fort Meade, Md.

First Lieutenant Carroll D. Wood, 67th Armored Regiment, departed on leave prior to reporting for duty at Camp Jackson, S. C.

First Lieutenant Donald F. Thompson, 26th Infantry, departed on leave prior to reporting for duty at Fort Thomas, Ky. Second Lieutenant Frank D. Miller, 93rd Antitank Battalion, departed for his new organization at Fort Griffin, Tex. First Lieutenant Marcus S. Griffin, Infantry, departed for Fort Meade, Md.

First Lieutenant Richard C. Williams, 10th Infantry, departed en route to Camp Ord, Cal., for new station.

BORN, at the station hospital, Monday, August 5, 1940, at 9 p. m., a son to Sergeant and Mrs. William P. Medley, Company F, 66th Armored Regiment. The baby weighed 7 pounds 13 1-4 ounces at birth.

MARIETTA OFFICIAL TO GO TO BENNING. MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—Trevelle Lawrence leaves Sunday to accept an active first lieutenant's commission in the United States Army post at Fort Benning, Ga. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald Lawrence.

ESTES TO BE IN CHARGE OF FORT OGLETHORPE. FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Aug. 9.—Colonel Howell M. Estes, member of the staff of the Sixth Cavalry, will be in charge of Fort Oglethorpe during the absence of the regiment for maneuvers in Louisiana and Texas. It was announced today by Major Hugh T. Hoffman, adjutant of the Sixth Cavalry.

The motorized Sixth Cavalry rolled out of the post reservation this morning at 7 o'clock, and camped last night at Fort McCallan, Ala. A small skeleton staff consisting of the quartermasters' and medical detachments remained at the post.

SOUTHERN DAIRIES TO AID DEFENSE WORK. Directors of Southern Dairies have approved a plan to provide compensation to members of the organization during periods of military training. A decision was reached to reserve jobs for permanent employees who are conscripted for service. Southern Dairies will also supplement the money paid by the government during the three weeks National Guard training period, so that the employee will receive his average weekly wages. Salaried employees will also be paid on this basis.

LAND TRACT IS BOUGHT FOR CEDARTOWN ARMY. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Aug. 9.—Construction of an armory here to house Battery F of the 214th Coast Artillery moved a step nearer here today when the city and county joined in purchase of a 140-acre airport tract. Five acres of the tract will be given to the National Guard unit for construction of an armory and training field.

IF THIS OLD RIFLE COULD TALK—No body knows who carried this gun, whether one of Old Joe Johnston's tireless battlers who faced Sherman on his march from Chattanooga, a youngster in knee pants who sallied out to defend the town, or a soldier of the invading army in Blue. David Mangham, left, and Vol Blacknell found it, buried in the stock in the sands of Peachtree creek, back of 2248 Peachtree road.

15,000 Troops Rusty Old Gun of 30th Division Recalls Days of Go on Review Sherman Visit

Presentation Today Will Conclude First Week of Training.

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Aug. 9. (AP)—The 30th Division, National Guard, will be presented in formal review tomorrow at Camp Shelby, where the 15,000 troops are in training for the main maneuvers along the Sabine river later this month.

General Henry Russell, of Macon, Ga., commanding general of the division, will be joined by other National Guard and regular army officers in the reviewing stand.

The review will conclude the first week's training for the guardsmen from Georgia, the Carolinas and Tennessee. They will leave here August 14 for the Sabine sector in Louisiana and east Texas.

Field tactics and drills on the firing range for rifle and artillery units comprise the main activities of the troops Thursday and Friday.

GEORGIANS INSTRUCTED IN M-1 RIFLE'S USE.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. FORT SHELBY, Miss., Aug. 9.—Special instructions in the use of the new M-1 rifle were given today to Sergeant Emmett H. McCrary, Corporal Louis Cowart and Private James T. St. John.

The three men are members of Company G, 121st Infantry, from the National Guard unit stationed at Valdosta, Ga. Upon completion of the school, held in conjunction with maneuvers here, the men will become authorized instructors.

Appointed as specialists are Privates, first class, Freeman B. Johnson, James T. St. John, Monroe H. Harpe, James E. Dees, John B. Powers, Carl A. Rykard, Herman R. Rivers and Thomas N. Southwell.

NEALY LECTURES ON GAS DEFENSE.

FORT SHELBY, Miss., Aug. 9. Captain Ernest A. Nealy, who in private life is a food chemist for the state of Georgia, today lectured on gas defense and prevention of injuries to members of Battery E, 179th Field Artillery Brigade.

Composed of Atlantans, Battery E met with some difficulty in arriving here for maneuvers, as several trucks broke down during the long trip from headquarters. However, the difficulties were quickly remedied.

Known for its discipline and military manner, Battery E is being trained by First Sergeant Hewin, who has seen active service in the United States Marines.

MALARIA PREVENTIVE ADMINISTERED TRAINEES.

FORT SHELBY, Miss., Aug. 9.—Preparations for extended maneuvers into Louisiana began here today as members of the 30th Division headquarters company received regular doses of quinine and alabrine to prevent malaria.

Privates James H. Thaxton and Lewis F. Strickland, both of Griffin, were treated by medical officers yesterday when they cut fingers while on kitchen police. Injuries were not serious.

The two privates had applied for kitchen police duty when it was announced that the company was scheduled today for a 10-mile hike. The hike, however, was canceled.

Navy To Build Biggest Aviation Base in Hawaii

HONOLULU, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Navy disclosed plans today for its largest naval aviation base in the Hawaiian area, a 2,700-acre airport at Barbers Point on Oahu island. It will accommodate planes for the aircraft carriers.

Youngsters Find Ancient Weapon in Sands of Peachtree Creek.

By HAROLD MARTIN. Every once in a while mementoes from that old far-off unhappy time when Sherman's ring of steel was tightening upon Atlanta turn up to capture the imagination for a moment.

There is the glimpse of the old breastworks where their faint mounds can still be seen, the glint of a belt buckle unearthed by a plow, a grape-shot scuffed from the earth by a child at play.

Yesterday there was another. David Mangham and Vol Blacknell, both 12, were wading in Peachtree creek, near 2248 Peachtree road. Mangham's foot struck a queerly carved piece of wood. He tugged and drew from the sands of the creek a rusty, mouldering old rifle—the muzzle-loading kind both warring armies used.

No Way of Telling. Whether it had lain there all these years, or whether a rising creek had washed it from the earth where it had fallen nobody knows. Who carried it, whether young or old, there is no way of telling.

The metal clip that held the leather sling was bent. Was it bent across the head of a foe in desperate hand-to-hand fighting along the creek, or was it bent against a stone as its dying owner fell?

Deep in the rust-choked barrel, was there a charge of powder and a leaden ball? Or was it fired one last time at a foe before its owner fell?

The only smattering of fact that might be applied to its history came last night when Wilbur Kurtz. About the place it was found, he said, on the 19th day of July, 1864, the blue hosts of Wood's division of the Federal Fourth Corps, attempted a crossing of Peachtree creek. A handful of Confederates, probably of Hardee's corps, opposed them. The fighting was fierce, and many were slain, but the crossing was successful. It was then, perhaps, on that day 76 years ago, that the gun's owner died, or fled, or was taken prisoner.

Merely a Curio. The fancies it conjures up are many. But today it is merely a curio, the prized possession of two small boys who spend their summer days strolling the parts of the old battlefield not yet covered with asphalt or buildings, finding things that send their imaginations winging.

They have chards from old Indian camps—pottery, arrowheads, spear points. They have bullets. And now, their greatest prize, the gun.

Both are bound by ties of blood to those old times. David Mangham, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Mangham, of 195 Lindbergh drive, is the great-grandson of two Confederate colonels. Blacknell, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Blacknell, of 98 Westminster drive, is a great-grandson of a major in the army of the south.

Morris Gershon Is 75; Celebrates in Florida

Morris Gershon, who lived in Atlanta more than 50 years, is celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday today at his home, 801 Eighth street, Miami Beach, Fla.

He is well-known in Atlanta and for years was connected with an insurance company here. Mr. and Mrs. Gershon celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here four years ago. They recently moved to Miami.

He is the father of Dr. Michael Gershon, Joseph S. Gershon, Mrs. E. D. Friedman, all of Atlanta; Mrs. Anne Hirsch, of Greenville, S. C.; Miss Polly Gershon, Miami; Mrs. H. Fink, New York city; Mrs. S. M. Levine, Augusta, Ga., and Mrs. Minus Goodrich, Sandersville, Ga.

Trim Suits for Trim Figures Highlight Stars' Wardrobes

If you are a woman flitting with the idea of a late summer vacation or merely buying a fall wardrobe, you'll want a suit. Hollywood offers four suggestions. Brenda Joyce prefers a suit of heavy crepe, simulating wool, and consisting of a dress and short jacket. Stripes in the skirt are effective. In Paramount's "I Want a Divorce," Joan Blondell models two suits—both three-piece affairs. The first includes a flaring short skirt of thin wool, a buttoned bolero of crushed raspberry wool with bracelet-length sleeves and a swag-topcoat of the same, lined with black crepe. Leather tan is the color of her other suit—with slightly flared skirt, zippered, fingertip jacket and hand-wrought bronze buttons. The long coat is lined with tan and white dotted crepe. Navy and white in smart striped broadcloth makes a stunning topcoat for Claudette Colbert, featured in M-G-M's "Boom Town." It's worn over a dress of navy silk jersey.

Know Correct Things To Do And Say

Tell-tale manners! He sits in his car and monks the horn for his date—and she blithely trots down the steps to join him. Of course, it's plain to the sophisticated young people passing that these two don't rate socially.

But suppose that she—and he, too—had spent a few minutes checking on etiquette—what a different impression they'd make! The girl whose manners are smooth as silk waits for her date to come to her house and ring the bell. She lets him open the car door for her.

If she wants to roll up a window, she asks politely, "Do you mind?" When they return home, she gives him her key, lets him unlock the door.

Such little courtesies not only make dating more fun, they are an entree to the sophisticated young set that goes places and does things.

At big formal affairs, such as a country club dance, you feel so poised and cool when you know what's correct. Ask your beau to let you out at the door while he parks his car. If there are separate cloakrooms, take care of checking your own wraps and tipping the attendant.

Win admiration for your charming manners. Our 40-page booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, gives the correct well-bred thing to do at dances, theaters, restaurants, on dates; when visiting, entertaining, motor-ing, traveling. Tells how to make introductions, answer formal invitations—appear poised in every social situation.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I'm expecting each one of you to be responsible for your own behavior while I'm away. Grandmother will be here if you need advice."

Mother: "Now Jennie you be a little mother and sister while I'm away. Bill, you and Mary be sure and do as Jennie tells you to."

Husbands Want Pleasant Companionship at Home

By Caroline Chatfield.

Presumably it was a woman who said, "She who has known one man well, knows all men." Not that each of them hasn't his individuality and his peculiarities but that in the main they all work alike. For instance when a man writes himself up as a dispenser of love and support he honestly believes this entitles him to the best the wife can give. He expects her to look her prettiest and be her pleasantest at all times, to prepare the comfortable place to sit, read and sleep, to provide him with good food and plenty of it, to listen when he talks and ask no questions when he doesn't.

He argues and rather well that he works hard at dollar chasing. The competitors are contentious. The customers are critical. The employees are irritating. So when he hires home he expects relaxation, conversation that doesn't require concentration. He expects to swap his perplexities and his problems for entertainment and diversion.

Why, when he has had a sandwich and a glass of milk for lunch, should he not sit down in the evening to a good dinner with a dainty woman presiding over the table? Why should he have to eat his meals to the accompaniment of complaints about the children and a recounting of the wife's aches and pains?

The smaller and less important he is in the world of affairs the more dependent is he upon his wife's making him feel sizeable, when he arrives at the castle. He's taken the rap during business. His ego has been punctured and deflated. Here's the wife's chance to re-establish his self-esteem and assure him that he is her hero.

These are the "staples," so to speak, that every husband requires for contentment with his wife in his home. Naturally, the "fancies" vary with the individual. One man likes to be petted and pampered; another let alone. One likes to spill his business worries in his wife's lap; another prefers to conceal them. One enjoys having the children around; another enjoys them out of sight. One is a glutton for guests; another demands family solitude.

There are many men of many kinds, but in one respect they are all alike. The last one of them wants pleasant companionship with his wife or he wouldn't have signed up. Of course the wife can't be the companion unless she's studied her husband, knows what he wants and gives it. If she does not get on to his crochets and peculiarities, respects them and tip-toes around them, there's a wreck.

You see, the man who doesn't find pleasant companionship at home seeks it elsewhere, sometimes quite innocently, sometimes quite guiltily; but always disastrously.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Cleanliness Is Best Aid For Health

By Dr. William Brady.

Having held the bad habit of constant nagging with physics responsible for the development of hemorrhoids (piles) in a great many cases, I suppose it is only fair to say that a dose of salts, any kind of brisk saline cathartic (least objectionable, perhaps, is a bottle of solution of magnesium citrate effervescent—the whole 12-ounce bottle is only a moderate dose) is a good emergency remedy for the relief of an acute, painful "attack" of piles. The direct effect of a dose of salts is to attract water, from the congested area, and discharge the water in watery evacuations, and this diminishes portal congestion and hence diminishes congestion in the hemorrhoidal area.

No local or internal medication can cure piles in the sense of putting an end to the trouble. Local medication can only relieve pain or congestion and so help to shorten the discomfort or suffering of the "attack." After the "attack" is over, that is, after the inflammation subsides, the pile or piles are still there, and it is only a question of time, habits and personal hygiene how long before another "attack" will occur.

One who suffers from recurring "attacks" of piles or from pain or from bleeding, should not temporize or waste time and money on nostrums purporting to be pile cures, but should have the trouble properly treated as a matter of comfort, good health, safety and economy.

The modern treatment of piles, either internal or external, is practically painless and may be carried out in the physician's office without interrupting the patient's everyday activities. It is as quaint and stupid to hesitate to seek medical treatment for fear treatment will hurt as it is to evade proper treatment from prudish embarrassment.

Instead of using mail order catalogues, flour sacks, newspapers, corncobs, leaves, grass and so-called toilet paper for toilet of the perineum, as we do in this country, it would be far better hygiene to use soap and water for cleaning and a towel merely for drying the perineal region after defecation. It would advance the level of hygiene and health in this country tremendously, in my opinion, if about 10,000,000 more wash basins were installed in public eating places which now have none or impossibly primitive accommodations for washing the hands.

The country also needs awakening to the value of and necessity for bidets in bathrooms in homes. A bidet is a modified sitz bath, provided with hot and cold running water and means a flushing; it is a convenience for proper cleanliness and the bathroom without it is a crude arrangement even if it is adorned with solid gold dewdrags and tile right up to the ceiling.

Anyway, one subject to piles must practice scrupulous soap and water cleanliness in order to avoid unduly frequent "attacks." A single failure to observe this requirement may mean another attack.

MY DAY: Reporters Discuss Pegler's Criticism

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Thursday.—Early yesterday morning I drove down to New York to see some of my son Elliott's friends. Then I bought some tickets for the benefit to be given at the Polo Grounds on August 22 for Bethune-Cookman College, founded by Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune at Daytona Beach, Fla. This college serves many thousands colored people who live south of Daytona. Because it was started with no endowments, there is always a need to raise the yearly running expenses. The party on the 22d will be a combination music and sports festival, and will include boxing contests and entertainment by many outstanding figures in the music, stage, screen and radio fields.

I have real admiration for Mrs. Bethune and her devotion to her race, as well as her tact and wisdom in all the work she undertakes. She has helped immeasurably as head of the work for young colored people in the National Youth Administration, and I hope that many people, not only of her race but also of mine, will be interested to help by attending this benefit.

Later in the afternoon I spoke over the radio for "Bundles for Britain," and was home in Hyde Park in time to have a swim before dinner.

The weather is glorious today, and we are all planning to be out of doors as much as we can. I have a party this afternoon for the Democratic women in near-by counties, and then I think we will all take picnic suppers and enjoy the moonlight, which is very beautiful just now.

The reporters who interviewed me yesterday, some of whom I imagine are members of the New York Newspaper Guild, seemed most interested in my announcement that I meant to attend the guild meetings, if I possibly could. They began by asking me to answer statements in Mr. Pegler's column of the day before, but as I had not read the column that was out of the question. I told them I would answer any questions which they wished to ask to the best of my ability.

It seems rather useless anyway to start answering statements made by my kindly fellow columnist, or by any other newspaper writers, now or in the future, unless for some reason I was particularly interested in doing so. In this case, it all seems very unimportant to me. I have no desire to be a member of any organization for which I am not eligible, and the organization is certainly competent to decide. For the moment, I happen to be in a little different position from other columnists. That has not always been the case and will not always be so in the future. In the meantime, I must worry along as best I can, facing situations that I find myself in, and doing the best I can with them as they are.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. Is this a good time to paint the exterior of a house?

A. Seasons of the year when bugs, gnats, flies, and insects are prevalent are not desirable for painting, because they stick to the paint and spoil its appearance. Fall is a good time to paint, when generally there are few rains and the lumber is in good condition. Never paint during or following a rain, heavy dew or frost, in damp, foggy atmosphere, when rain is threatening, or in freezing weather. Painting under the direct rays of the summer sun also should be avoided.

Q. How are "cracklings" prepared?

A. Cook the pork rinds over a medium fire, in a large kettle, which should be covered until the fat has cooked out and then uncover while the rinds brown. Remove from kettle and drain.

Q. Should clothing be cleaned before it is placed on "moth-proof" paper bags?

A. Yes, and remember that the storage bags lose their protective value when they become torn, or are left unsealed.

Q. Should the guest of honor or the hostess be served first?

A. Guest of honor.

PATTERN 6486

Designer Combines Velvet With Fur for Fall Suits

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9.—Are you vacation-bound? Here's an attractive traveling get-up worn by blond Brenda Joyce. Of heavy gray crepe that simulates wool, the outfit comprises a dress and short jacket. Stripes are used with good effect in the skirt and also form a horizontal pattern in the bodice. The jacket, which has near-wrist-length sleeves, is snugly banded at the waist. Brenda's hat is a black straw sailor. Black suede open-toe pumps and black suede handbag complete the ensemble.

Another gown worn by Brenda—in "Public Debutante No. 1"—features bold scrolls of blue on a white background for a summer silk afternoon frock. The apron effect of the skirt is new, and Designer Travis Banton has balanced the accessories of the costume by using a frosty white turban, handbag and sandals, combining white suede and polished blue alligator leather, and all-white gloves.

Dolly Tree, dress designer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, predicts that "A blaze of vermillion and scarlet will illumine the fashion world," and adds: "Naturally, the World War will continue to have a tremendous influence on coming fashions; however, the bad imitations of military uniforms, insignias, and brass buttons that have been launched lately, will disappear."

Indicative of the trend are some Tree-designed fresh-looking suits worn by Myrna Loy in her latest picture, "I Love You Again." One of them is in soft blue crepe, features the skirt a little less full, and the double-breasted coat a trifle longer than previous style. A fresh white collar in eyelet embroidery encircles the coat collar.

The turban, says Miss Tree, will continue its fashion popularity and forecasts for the fall—tiny toques of autumn leaves and bright-hued dahlias and chrysanthemums with bunches of the same flowers on large muffs of fox, sable or what-have-you! . . . Another fall prophecy: "Velvet suits will be highlighted by large fur collars with contrast showing in the soft feminine blouse beneath. . . . For evening, fluid draping will individualize formal gowns, complete with flowing velvet capes." . . . And for hair-styles, "Simplicity with less architectural effects."

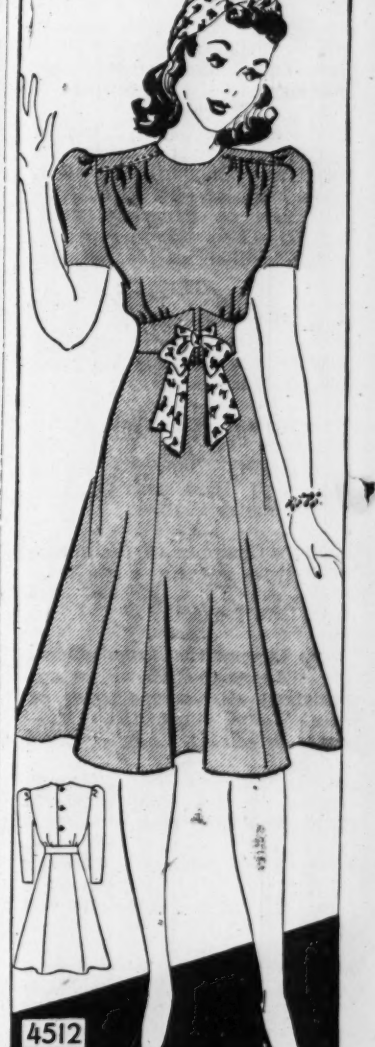

Novel fastenings distinguish many of the daytime clothes Betty Grable will wear in "Down Argentine Way." The blouse of a two-piece gray twill outfit fastens with what Betty calls, "Leaping Lenas"—stylized silver horses about an inch and a half long. A cowboy of the pampas is made in bronze and silver to be worn on the lapel of a brown tweed coat. "Tiny garden shears in silver that clamp around small silver knobs replace buttons on another sports dress, also gray."

Newest versions of the "torso" suits are now being worn by Marjorie Weaver in the Fox picture, "For Beauty's Sake." All of them are without collars, cardigan fashion; big square pockets are placed near the shoulders and at the hips, and matched by skirts that are pleated to look pleated slim. (Better start dieting!) Made of lightweight wool for summer resort use, a typical color combination is a bright navy blue skirt with jacket in yellow, hand-sewn in navy blue.

A gala night in Hollywood. . . . Bette Davis in a flowing line chiffon gown with one shoulder bare, the other covered with a drape of the material held with an emerald and diamond fastener, the same jewel fastening her curls.

Matching Turban

It won't be long now before it's back-to-school, to work, to busy days. You'll find a striking ensemble like Pattern 4512, by Lillian Mae, indispensable. The colorful turban, cut in just two pieces, is a fashion "headline." The dress is strikingly simple, with a to-the-waist back buttoning . . . a high, round neckline and a paneled skirt. Yokes at the front shoulders hold in nicely gathered softness below. Have long, three-quarter or short sleeves. A wide girdle, held together by hooks, link buttons, a bow or a clasp, gives a striking new touch. You might have the bow of vivid contrast, to tie-up with the gay turban. Here's a style that's really "different."

Pattern 4512 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18. Size 13, chest takes 2 3/4 yards 39-inch fabric; bow and turban, one yard contrast.

Atlanta P.-T. A. Congress Sponsors National Program

Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers will co-operate in the three-year program of action on the topic, "The Child in His Community," which is being launched by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, through its 28,000 local parent-teacher associations. Mrs. Robert A. Long, president of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, announced. Based upon the 1940 White House Conference on Children in a Democracy, the program calls upon two and a quarter million parent-teacher members to concentrate upon "goals to be reached so that every child may have the opportunity to live a full life, truly satisfying to himself and useful to his community."

In presenting the program, Mrs. William Kietzer, of Portland, Ore., national president, states: "Because we are convinced that the deliberations of the White House Conference revealed the needs of American childhood, our program is based upon its findings and recommendations. As parents and teachers, we pledge ourselves to do the things that can be done now and to plan for those that must be done in the future."

The program urges parent-teacher associations to promote activities basic to the well-being of American children and youth, including: extension of parent education; encouragement of higher standards of family life; emphasis

Jackson - Guy Wedding Plans Are Announced

Attracting widespread interest is the announcement of the plans for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Jackson and Robert J. Guy. The ceremony is to be a brilliant event of August 29, taking place at the auditorium of the First Baptist church. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller will perform the marriage at 6:30 o'clock.

The bride-elect has chosen as her maid of honor Miss Jean Belton Jackson, of Jasper, Ala. Her bridesmaids include Miss Betty Jean Wilson, Florence, Ala.; Miss Jacquelyn Jackson, Jasper, Ala.; all cousins of the bride-elect; Mrs. Fred Reed, Miss Polly Jones, Miss Elizabeth Tillman and Miss Louise Jeanes, of Milledgeville. The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her cousin, Dr. A. C. Jackson.

Solon Couch will be best man for Mr. Guy. The groomsmen will include Coleman Clarke, Joseph Holman, of Rome, Ga., of the groom-elect; Leland Jackson and Robert Jackson, brothers of the bride-elect; Marcus Bartlett and Barnes Sale.

Ushers will include B. B. Barnett, Troy Woodbury, Jerry Clark and E. A. Wright. A musical program will be presented by Miss Emilie Parmalee, organist; Ruth Dabney Smith, violinist, and Paul Overby, tenor. He will sing a number written by Mrs. Bonita Crowe and used for the first time at this wedding.

After the ceremony the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Jessie Lee Jackson, will entertain at her home on Johnson road at a small reception for the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests. Mrs. Fred Reed was hostess recently at her home on Avery drive at a luncheon for Miss Jackson.

Invited were Misses Polly Jones, Anna Kothe, Alice Gray Harrison, Santa Mueller, Edith West, Hazel Minding and Mesdames Maynard and Coleman Clarke and Robert Harris.

On Saturday Miss Polly Jones will compliment Miss Jackson at a tea at her home on Clairmont road in Decatur.

Receiving with the hostess and honor guest will be Misses Margaret Hecht and Molly Jones, Miss Carolyn Russell, of Winder, will serve punch. Assisting in entertaining will be Mrs. Edward Jones, mother of the hostess, Mesdames Richard Whitehead, James Broom, Ralph Lee and Miss Betty Wilson.

Centering the lace-covered table will be a silver bowl containing snapdragons and roses flanked on either side by silver candelabra holding white tapers.

On Tuesday Mrs. J. M. Harrison will entertain at a luncheon at the Capital City Club. On August 16 Mrs. Coleman Clarke will be hostess at her home on Peachtree Battle avenue complimenting Miss Jackson and Mr. Guy.

Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Jackson will entertain at a buffet supper at the home of the bride-elect's mother, on Johnson road on the evening of August 28 after the wedding rehearsal.

Miss Smith Feted At Social Affairs.

Miss Margaret Smith, whose marriage to George N. Wagon will be a social event of August 24, continues to be feted at social affairs. Yesterday Miss Smith was honor guest at a luncheon at which Miss Yvonne Crumley was hostess at her home on Peachtree-Dunwoody road.

Assisting the hostess in entertaining were Misses Miriam Rudel, Millie Wagon, and Mrs. L. H. Crumley, mother of the hostess.

Guests were Misses Virginia Powell, Rosemary Wrigley, Jean Dennison, Frances Sisson, Martha Aiken, June Boykin, Helen Klugh, Virginia Zachry, Sara Jarvis, Margaret Battle, Lelia Aiken and Frances Cannon.

Today the attractive bride-to-be will be central figure at the luncheon at which Mrs. Bradford Hodges will be hostess at East Lake Country Club.

Invited are Misses Susan Smith, Millie Wagon, Jean Dennison, June Boykin, Helen Klugh, Lady Jane Aiken, Dot Garland, Miriam Rudel, Elise Longino, Martha Aiken, Betty Hodges, and Mrs. Linton Smith, mother of the hostess.

Miss Byrdie Young Weds Mr. Newman.

WASHINGTON, Ga., Aug. 9.—The marriage of Miss Byrdie Young, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Foster Young, to Warren Newman, well-known young businessman of Sandersonville, took place Saturday, with the bride's father performing the ceremony.

Mrs. R. R. Johnson, organist, and Miss Phronia Twigg, of West Point, rendered a program of music. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Robbie Young, as maid of honor, and by Miss Sally Becon, of Sandersonville, a cousin of the groom, Miss Frances Johnson, of Washington; Miss Phronia Twigg and Mrs. Charles Taggart, of LaGrange, as bridesmaids.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James Young, H. H. Newman, of Sandersonville, father of the groom, attended him at the altar. The ushers were Bill Quillian, of Cartersville; Dick Hudson, Herman Paris and John Conn.

The couple left for a wedding trip immediately following the ceremony, and upon their return, will make their home in Sandersonville.

Business Women Meet

The Business Women's Circle of the Kirkwood Baptist church met recently with Mrs. L. M. Hamilton on Hamilton street. Mrs. H. S. Hamilton, the chairman, presiding.

Mrs. J. R. Glass, chairman, presented a program as follows: Mrs. Fred T. Bridges spoke on "The Training School" and "Margaret Fund," a brief talk by Alfred Taylor, a Margaret fund student; special music by Mrs. Reade P. Ashurst and Mrs. A. D. Brunson.

Sally Forth SAYS

Kitty and Jim Henry Are Feted Before Leaving for Pittsburgh

• • • INMATES of those popular Atlantans, Kitty and Jim Henry, will regret to hear of their early departure for Pittsburgh, where they will reside for the next six months. Last week Kitty and Jim went for a visit in Pittsburgh and to find suitable living quarters for their family, which is composed of their two adorable young daughters, Peason and Meredith.

Before returning to Atlanta, Kitty and Jim were guests of the C. Bedell Monroff, at Harbor Point Club at Harbor Point, Mich. Here they spent four days having a marvelous time meeting new friends, as well as indulging in the many sports that popular resort offers.

Kitty and Jim returned to Atlanta last Thursday in order to close their home and make preparations for moving, and incidentally, Sally understands that when Kitty leaves on the 19th, her young daughters will experience their first plane trip.

Last evening initiated a series of farewell parties given in honor of these popular Atlantans previous to their departure. Hazel and Ken Meredith were hosts at the first affair, a steak fry, which was given in their attractive rustic barbecue pit at their home on Hillside drive. This was really a double occasion, for the congenial hosts also celebrated their wedding anniversary on that particular date.

This evening the Pritchard Duncans will entertain at a dinner party at their home on Andrews drive. Invited for the occasion will be a small group of friends of the hosts and honor guests. Tomorrow evening, the Stuart Broemans will be hosts at a dinner party at the Capital City Country Club for the Henrys.

Monday evening members of the Tuxedo Hunt Club will honor the departing couple at a fancy dress movie ball at the Hunt Club. Jim, you know, was the Fun and Play chairman, and has planned many delightful parties during the past year for the club membership.

Additional parties have been planned for Kitty and Jim, the dates and nature of these affairs to be announced later.

Another interesting affair, which will assemble the very young social contingent, will be the picnic at which little Pearson Henry will be hostess during the weekend. She will invite a group of her young playmates and Sally hears that already her friends have confided to their parents about how they hate for Pearson and her little sister, Meredith, to leave Atlanta, even if it is just for a short while.

For Miss Gladys Lewis.

Among the enjoyable parties being given in honor of Miss Gladys Lewis, whose marriage to Victor L. Davis will be an event of August 17, was the recent miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Paul McGee at her home on Greenwood avenue.

Present were Mesdames Charles W. Outlaw, D. L. Troutman, Ruth Tucker, Calvin McDaniell, John Felder, W. C. Carlton, Montine Howell, Oscar Lewis and Misses Ellie Chandler, Virginia Bauknight, Evelyn Grant, Avilla Sheridan, Virginia Durham, Dorothy Cleapor, Miriam Carlton, Anne Dykes, Ruby Williams, Mary Jane McQuire, Louise Crew, Louise Phillips and Annie Culp.

American Grove Plans Meetings

American Grove 217, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, meets Monday at the hall, 226 1-2 Peachtree street, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, national director and state manager, will preside and other officers assisting will be Mrs. Willie Bell O'Keeffe, Frances James, Helen Shearin, Annie L. Byars, Mae Gentry, Roselee Terry, Lina Ridgeway, Florence Scarborough, Vera Hardy, Hazel Bankston, Ellie Bagley, Madeline White, Inez Jones, Misses Kathryn Fortner, Corrine Hutcherson and the Do-Al-Ta team girls. A class of new candidates will be initiated.

The Do-Al-Ta team girls will meet at the hall, 226 1-2 Peachtree street, on Monday at 7:30 o'clock. The Officers' Club will meet on Monday at the hall at the same hour.

Members of the organization for 25 years who have just received their service pins, are Mrs. Ellie B. Calkins and Mrs. Beverly L. Littleton.

The Clara B. Cassidy Service Club of American Grove 217, met recently at Grant park for a picnic. Mrs. Blanche Schofield, the guardian, and Al Schofield, captain of the team of American Grove 217, are on an extended trip out west. They will visit the home for aged members and orphan children in Sherman, Texas, home office in Omaha, St. Louis, Seattle and Los Angeles. They will visit relatives in Benton City, Wash., the home of Mr. Schofield's mother.

Mrs. Annie L. Byars, state vice president, and attendant of American Grove 217, returned recently from a visit to relatives in Wheeling, W. Va.; Lexington, Ky., and Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, national director and state manager, has returned from Tennessee, where she attended Woodmen Circle meetings and will be honor guest at American Grove 217 at the business meetings on Monday.

Mrs. Annie L. Byars is in LaGrange this week to attend Woodmen Circle meetings.

"A short short skirt for me! Queen Elizabeth plaid, all wool, and mighty good looking. This one is 7.98, and the sweaters I like with it are Shetland wool, in a lovely yellow that picks up the gold in the skirt. The slip-on only costs 2.50, and the cardigan 3.00."

THE MORTAL STORM

Freya Takes Her Baby Outdoors Despite The Protests From Frau Breitner

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS. At the vast Maberger estate, where Freya Roth is recuperating from an illness following the death of her Communist lover, Hans Breitner, Freya suddenly discovers that she is about to bear Hans' child. Previously she has gone about grimly silent, even contemplating suicide—and all the while she is aware that Hans was killed by Fritz Maberger, her aristocratic admirer at the order of her own stepbrother, Olaf von Rohn, a Nazi. She thinks that Olaf and Fritz tried to help save Hans and anticipated the wedding soon to take place between Olaf and Sophie Maberger, childhood sweethearts. The will to live once more restored to her, Freya studies her medical books avidly, is supremely happy because of the child to come. She looks forward, too, to the visit of her father, Dr. Johann Roth, celebrated Jewish scientist, and does not realize that all the delays of his visit have been occasioned by the fact that even the Maberger, old friends of the Roths, are afraid to invite even a renowned Jew to their home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT LIL

These thronging images moved clearly along the path of her stretched intent, nor did they interfere with the steady movements of her body. Time passed while she remembered them.

At last Seppel said: "The sun is up!" and Freya saw, above the ice-white ridges, a widening pool of gold.

Long, clear rays stretched across the snow, like steady fingers smoothing away pain.

At last, she heard his voice above the drumming in her ears. "Rest now," he told her. "In a few minutes Karl will be here, with a milk sledge. The snow is firm. Lucky there has been no Fohn wind for the last week! I will take off your skis!"

"But shan't I have to put them on again?" Freya asked, clutching dizzily at his outstretched arm. "I couldn't take them off and put them on again—Seppel!"

Her voice trembled and she was afraid that she was going to cry. It seemed so cruel of Seppel to think that she could put on her skis again, once she had taken them off.

"You don't have to," he said gently. "Once off, they can stay off! We'll pull you up all the rest of the way!"

At last a long faint Jodel broke the stillness, and Seppel flung back his head, and by way of answer filled the air with wild, rollicking unearthly screams.

Karl, Michel and a milk sledge slid into view at it by magic. Freya felt as if she had never left them. Her hands were clasped by Karl in a long firm grip and Michel's eyes rested upon her with bright incredible kindness.

Karl's dog rushed out to greet them in a startled frenzy of acceptance, and Frau Breitner, after one brief glance from the kitchen door, retreated to the stove, as if her real welcome was best expressed in "Knodelsuppe."

Anna and Franz were feeding pigs in the distance and could do no more than wave. The two men lifted Freya from the milk sledge, for to her surprise she found she could not stand.

Seppel smiled at her for the first time. "It was enough, Frau-lein," he told her. "I knew that you could do it—but I thought that it would be enough."

The room Freya slept in was bare and spotlessly clean. It was used in summer time as an extra dining-room for visitors, when the kitchen was full. Frau Breitner had not moved its long trestle table, nor the benches pushed back against the wood-paneled walls. She had only placed a small truckle bed between the window and the door that led into the kitchen, so that Freya could feel herself part of the life of the house and not cut off from warmth and fellowship.

The night before, Frau Breitner and Anna had taken turns in rubbing Freya from head to foot, with warm oil. They had rubbed deep and long, until at last, worn out by her climb, Freya had slept under their hard, firm hands. When she woke she found no stiffness left, but she knew that her hour had come.

Freya was not sure what happened in the last hours, her mind slipped from its control and registered fancies for facts. Her father came in once and spoke to her, although nobody else seemed to notice him. "Give," he told her, "you cannot give too much! Give all! All is not enough!"

The feeling that she must not be allowed such sharp suffering left Freya after he had spoken. She saw with surprise the great drops of perspiration standing out on Frau Breitner's weather-beaten face, as she leaned over her and watched the wrinkles on her forehead thicken into ridges. Anna kept covering her mouth with her hand, as if she must scream instead of Freya. At last she ran out of the room and called Michel from the byre. He came in, after washing his face and hands, and knelt by Freya's bedside, gazing down upon her with great eyes full of pity. Freya forgot that he was a misshapen dwarf with a huge head, who could not speak plainly and had no thoughts. It was as if his hands held the wits nature had denied his brains. Michel had spent his life in perpetual attendance upon the urgent needs of living creatures, and to his almost creative skill he added a love without human barriers.

As he looked into Freya's eyes she knew instantly that he would save her. His strong hands were slower and gentler with her tortured body than his mother's had been, and when the end came he gave her a live and flawless child. "It is a man!" Frau Breitner called excitedly into the kitchen, before Freya heard its small thin cry.

The rough simple faces crowding in upon her to see their new relation confused Freya's mind; where was she lying—in a stable, and were these two thousand-year-old shepherds who thronged forward to see her child? She felt sure that Hans was kneeling close beside her. She could hear his voice murmuring: "Freya—Freya—it is always like this!"

then his voice sank back upon itself like the turning snowflakes, his shining eyes were gone, but he had not left her comfortless. A calm certainty invaded Freya's whole being. She felt the struggle that she had been through was worth more than any pleasure she had ever known.

He was not more beautiful than other babies. His face had a red crumpled look; his blue-washed eyes were small; his hands skinny with long square-tipped fingers; his nose a button; his mouth a hole. He was wrapped from head to foot in layers and layers of warm red flannel covered over by a knitted rug and he lay on Freya's knees in the sun, blinking upwards at her between white eyelashes.

Why should she care so deeply for so small and recent an addition to her acquaintance? Why should she feel so desperately certain of a love for him that was at once unflinching and irrevocable?

It was his first time out of doors and Frau Breitner, although the day was hot and golden with light, had said rather caustically that winter babies should not be taken out before the ice men had come and gone in May.

Freya had not explained that she wanted to have him to herself—upon his own mountainside—and Frau Breitner, though she disapproved, had said no more. Freya had only a few days longer of her young motherhood. After that Hans' baby would belong by right to his grandmother, and could be brought up—as she intended to bring him up—exactly like his father.

The mountain was so fixed in stillness, that Freya could hear every drop that fell from the icicles. The barn behind her stood in a deep-blue shadow, cut sharply off from the golden snow. Far away outside the byre Anna appeared, followed slowly and sedately by the twenty cows. It was so good a day that she was taking them to the Quelle to drink, instead of to the trough beyond the kitchen door.

Anna was in no hurry, the cows were in less hurry still, with infinite serenity they came and went, hardly appearing to move at all—one creamy back after another floating into Freya's vision and out again. After they had all disappeared a man's figure cast a long shadow down the path. It was not time for Karl to come back to his midday meal, and this figure was too tall and thin for Michel's. Perhaps it might be Seppel, Freya thought, not without pleasure, for she knew that Seppel felt for her not only the loyal acceptance of the Breitners but also a touch of romance.

It was not a serious romance. Freya thought with a half smile—but grew like some fugitive untimely flower in a sheltered niche—bound to perish quickly when she removed the brief sunshine of her presence.

Still it was nice to be like light to anyone again! But the figure advancing steadily towards her—passing both the byre and the farm without stopping—was not Seppel's.

Freya knew before she could see his face, that it was Olaf. She had time while he advanced towards her to remember her anger; the last words she had shouted at him; and those that had ached ever since in her heart; but she could no longer feel the fire that had burned behind her words.

Too much had taken place since then; pain had shaken her out of the net of judgment.

Nor was the Olaf, whom she looked at now, the same Olaf. His beauty was still there, but so worn and thinned with trouble that he looked robbed of his youth.

This was no happy young bridegroom, strong and complacent in his completed manhood. It was instead a mature man dulled down by sorrow, with his spirit in chains.

Olaf's lips moved, as if to speak her name, and it startled Freya more than anything else could have startled her, to see that he did not dare.

To help him, she said quickly: "You came—to see me—Olaf?" "I had to," he said with a long shuddering sigh of relief. He sank down beside her on the bench, gazing down at the bundle of warm life she held so close against her breast.

"I am glad you had to!" Freya said warmly, almost without volition, "very glad you had to, Olaf!"

Olaf ignored this opening; he spoke as if he were still listening to the last words she had said to him at Schloss Maberger. "Of course, I was responsible," he admitted. "I know that! I have never denied it! Fritz merely carried out my orders. You were wrong to throw him off as you did, Freya—but what you said to me—well, I have never got it out of my head! In a sense I know that I betrayed you but I had to think of your reason. I had to think of your whole life!"

Air Raid Loss British Order To Hitler Set Woman Traced At $2,000,000 From Atlanta

By The Associated Press.
The German campaign of mass air attacks on the British Isles was declared by some British observers yesterday to be costing the Nazis a great deal more—in money, morale and Messerschmitts—than the defenders.

This claim that air invasion is thus far a bankrupt strategy was put forward on the basis of an official checkup of the results of Thursday's vast raid by 400 German planes on English Channel shipping.

60-16 Score.
This, said the air ministry, was the score.

German planes destroyed—60. British shipping destroyed, both by air and the torpedo boat attack that ushered in the air assault, 16. The text was "The Honorable Cynthia Maude Barksley of London England has been convalescing at Brook Haven Farm from her recent war experiences in France leaves on Friday to visit relatives in Nassau."

Edwards identified her brought word from the registry of the British embassy in Washington it had no record of the name. She was described as about 38 years old, of cultivated manner, and was said to have entered this country from Canada.

Use of the title "The Honorable," officials pointed out, indicates that the person so described is a child of a British peer, but there is no Berkeley family listed in the peerage. Examination of the coat-of-arms by heraldic experts failed to establish any connection with that name. It was found, however, that the stationery containing the emblem of nobility had been printed in Atlanta and the emblem was not that of any family in the peerage.

No details concerning the former patient would be given by sanitarian attaches, who declared they knew of no reason for official interest in her activities.

Cuban Capitalist, Once Held for $187,000, Dies
HAVANA, Aug. 9.—(P)—Antonio San Miguel, 85, victim five years ago of a kidnapping by a revolutionary group, died today, leaving a fortune estimated at $800,000.

The capitalist was abducted in June, 1935, by revolutionaries who demanded $187,000 ransom with which they intended to finance an uprising.

When police seized the ransom just as San Miguel's business associates were about to deliver it, the kidnappers released him on his promise to pay. Police never determined whether he actually paid.

Nassau Arrival Expected To Coincide With That of Duke, Duchess.

British consular authorities at Miami yesterday were operating under orders from higher English officials to interest themselves in the movements of a woman of presumed aristocratic connections who was understood to have left a neurological sanitarium near Atlanta for Nassau, Bahamas, where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will be arriving almost simultaneously.

She was referred to as "The Honorable Cynthia Maude Barksley," of London, in unsigned typewritten letters, containing a gold coat-of-arms, sent to Atlanta newspapers from the sanitarium, Brook Haven Manor, at Stone Mountain.

The text was "The Honorable Cynthia Maude Barksley of London England has been convalescing at Brook Haven Farm from her recent war experiences in France leaves on Friday to visit relatives in Nassau."

Edwards identified her brought word from the registry of the British embassy in Washington it had no record of the name. She was described as about 38 years old, of cultivated manner, and was said to have entered this country from Canada.

Mills Want Governor Who Will Intimidate Labor, He Declares.

UNION POINT, Ga., Aug. 9.—Hugh Howell, candidate for Governor, declared in a speech here today that the cotton manufacturers of Georgia are supporting Eugene Talmadge because they are bitter foes of President Roosevelt and in favor of Wendell Willkie.

He charged that the cotton manufacturers "hate Roosevelt because Roosevelt gave us the wage and hour law, which compels these manufacturers to pay a living wage, with decent hours, to the men and women who are employed in their mills."

"The cotton mill manufacturers want a man for Governor who will continue military rule to break strikes and intimidate labor," he added.

Howell spoke earlier in the day at Monroe, where he turned the key to the Dalton Boys' Club, which will be held at the boys' club pool in Dalton August 22. It was announced today by William L. Garrett, executive director. Events will be held for both boys and girls, including 30 and 60-yard dashes, free style; 30 and 60-yard dashes, back stroke; 60 and 120-yard relays.

U. S. Marines O.D. Bailey, 64, In China Under Dies; Services Japanese Now This Afternoon

Withdrawal of British From Shanghai Causes Command Shift.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9.—(P)—Withdrawal of British troops from Chinese soil, announced today, will leave Shanghai's International defense forces, including about 1,000 United States Marines, under the formal command of a Japanese rear admiral.

American authorities refused to discuss possible developments. Theoretically at least, Rear Admiral Moriji Takeda, commander of the Japanese bluejacket garrison, could station his men in the British defense sector of the International Settlement.

In a formal sense at least, as matters now stand, Takeda would direct the disposition of the armed forces, including the Fourth Regiment of United States Marines, as ranking officer of those left in representation of foreign powers interested in the complex Shanghai community.

The British had preserved this command by posting a major-general, Frank Simons, but he will go with the British troops being moved to Hongkong or Singapore in accordance with British defense needs—as the move was explained both here and in London.

The American Marine commander is Colonel DeWitt Peck. (In Washington, Summer Welles, acting secretary of state, said that the British withdrawal would have no effect on the position of the United States there. In all, there are about 1,650 Marines in China.)

Japanese Pleased.

A Japanese embassy spokesman said the Japanese were "very pleased" over the British decision to withdraw. He recalled that Japan had "suggested" that the forces of all belligerent powers be removed from China to prevent danger of clashes there and said he expected other belligerents would follow Britain's example.

The British withdrawal will leave the American Marines and Japanese bluejackets, between whom friction has arisen frequently in the past, the only important elements of the Shanghai defense forces.

WATER CARNIVAL.
DALTON, Ga., Aug. 9.—A swimming and diving carnival, sponsored by the Dalton Boys' Club, will be held at the boys' club pool in Dalton August 22. It was announced today by William L. Garrett, executive director. Events will be held for both boys and girls, including 30 and 60-yard dashes, free style; 30 and 60-yard dashes, back stroke; 60 and 120-yard relays.
